We have been auxious to learn what Abraham Lincoln and his advocates mean by the freedom of the press and the freedom of speech; and we find in the Union Press an attempt to explain, in a soher discussion, withou! clap-trap. We republish what the writer has to say, that the reader may understand our remarks upon it, and see, at the same time what can be said to justify the repression of free speech and a free press, that has become common since the present party obtained power. Here we may ask, wby it is that any restriction at all should obtain in any emergency. Have our people become incompetent to form a correct judgment upon a subject discussed? Are they incompetent to hear dis cussion? Must come one supervise their reading, lest they be misled? Who is it that undertakes to lord it over mind and thought monget our people? We had been taught that the people were sovereign, and competent to take care of themselves and the govern ment. The repressives act on a different theory. It is necessary that they take care of the people and see that, for their own good, they do not read certain things in politics. Edged tools must be kept out of the hands of chil dren, and the people of the United States are to be treated the same way. They must have list of prescribed books and newspapers, len', innocent sou's, they may be misled into error. Who is the party that resumes to tell us what facts, reasons, arguments and criticisms, may be read by our people, and what may not? We care I ot what the emergency is, nor what the subject to be discussed, the judges, at least, the people, have a right to read and hear. They have set up no schoolmaster over their heads to prescribe their reading or hearing. All ettempts to set any limits to this right o discussion and criticism, is an impudent atlempt to dictate to a sovereign what he shall hear of a case submitted to his discretion. A writer or speaker may utter nonsense, or cmploy cophistry to mislead; that it is for the decide for them. But this attempt at repression is as impoli tic as it is unwarranted. It is impossible to prevent the reading or hearing of political opinions. The attempt to prevent it will only multiply hearers and readers. Those who may be deburred from reading some things emporarily, will find mans to read similar productions and be the more confirmed in the belief that the suppressed discussion is right. because its opponents are afraid to let them read it. They will conclude that a cause is had that will not bear discussion: that power is afraid of the truth; and honce, the rublicalon was suppressed. In this day of neiversal talking and reading, one had as well undertake to pen up the winds of heaven as the suppression of speech and the press; so that any attempt of the sort is not only unwarrantpeople to decide. No body is sutherized to ed, but is in the highest degree luexpedient. The Union Press admits that speech and the prese cught to be free. The writer undertakes to find limits to this freedom; and these limits form the debatable ground.

After a question has been fully discussed and decided, it is clear that all discussion that may impair the efficiency of the measure cught to cease. So also the motives of those entrasted with the execution onght not to be impurped. we are told. Certainly this writer must be a tyre in history and politics. Where does he get authorly in the practices of any free government for such a limit? Did the opposition is England to the war on the colonies cease, after the war was decided on? Did the opposition to the war of 1819, in this country, cease after war was declared? Did the opposition to the Mexican war cease after the war was begun? Who ever pretended before that the right to oppose at all times by discussion, was not orquestionable? How is an unjust war ever to end, if it is not to be opposed after it is begut? This limitation that the writer nudertakes to flx, is a paipable absurdity. It would be very convenient, indeed, for a party in power, after it had adopted its measures, to silence all opposition? How easily they would float legg! Before the government declaed on any co erelen, it was right to discuss it; but having decided, the opposition must dry up. How, ther, we ask again, is the war to cease, however using and ruipous it may be? Have the people of the United States, who have to support this war with their blood and treasure, no right to say how much of that blood and tressure they will apend? Are they to remain slient, no matter what convictions may (xis) on the sublect?

We are told that disensaton which springs from a motive to embarrass, not to encourage, is factions. That depends on whether it is evil to be embarrassed or evil to be encouraged. It is factious to emberrase what is good or to encourage evil; and who is to judge except the individual himself, whether the mess ares of government are good or evi ? Where is the tribunal, invested with the power to demapkind, and to define what houghts may be expressed, and what must be suppressed? Take the case in hand in this country to day. Suppose a man believes that this wer is now rainous and saicidal to his country; suppose be believes, as millions do, that the measures adopted, which are so interwoven with war

We are told that no patriot will or pose mean uses to impair their efficiency. If they are efficient for evil, the less efficiency they have the betler; and who dares set himself up to decide this question for other people? Who is invested with a divine right to slience his neighbor in the discussion of his thoughts?

But at best no patriot will oppose the meas pres his Government has deliberately adopted when it will only distract and divide and prodoes dissetisfaction. There is a question. Suppose these measures, if successful, will defeat the object to be attained—the suppression of the rebelilor; suppose that the more suc- with it obcdience to the lord paramount, the cessful they are, the worse for the country, central government. Heaseumea the prerogative of God who un dertakes to impose slience on an opponent. In a free, intelligent country, even falsehood and slander will never destroy a good cause "Truth crushed to carth will rise again," is not mere rhetoric. Our Constitution asys Congress shall make free press out of the reach of the Federal In a moral code it is in order to lay down rules of discussion, which it is wrong to vioate; but in this country there is no power of late; but in this country there is no power of an ecception to war-worn solrepression, no power to impose pensities upon the discussion of public affairs. and established. The amount of the article in the Press is that the government has adopted certain measures that are salutary and efficient, if well executed ; then it is wrong to oppose hem. Grant the premiser, and we do not dispute the conclusion. But, on the other hand, people say these measures are pregnant with mischlef and nothing else. The better they are executed the worse for the country. It was wrong to adopt them, and equally wrong to annport them. It is a du'y to oppose them. Grant the premises, and the conclusion is unavoidable. One side is right: of course it is wrong to prose it. That is the end of the logic. It is wrong to keep a discussion up against our side. We agree that our opponents are wrong, and ought not to keep up a discussion against us. That is the opinion of every But the practical point is, what wi'l pirty. you do about it? Will you undertake, by force, to repress this wrong of speaking and writing against your aide?

That is what all political and religious parties used to do two hundred years age; and it is the very essence of despotism. It is the last resource of arbitrary government that was given up. The toleration of free discussion was a hard lesson to learn, and the most valuable ever learned. The dominant party are now trying to anteach what genera tions of suffering taught. If they will go back two hundred years they will find the most plous and patriotic ressons assigned for any pressing this freedom of the tongue and press, quite as cogent as they can frame now. Some authors give them in extenso, and they were as good then as the Press has to offer now.

Mr. Lancaster, the reputed owner of the Deerhound, has found it neces. sary to write a letter to the London News, in Important Statements in Reference which he denies having been in league with Semmes. He says: My impression is that the vacht was in Cherbourg to suit my convenience and pleasure, and I am quite aure that when there I neither did, nor intended to do, anything to serve the Alshama We steamed out on Sunday morning to see the engagement, and the resolution to do so was the result of a family connell whereas the question "to go out" or "not to go out" was duly discussed, and the decision in the sfirmative was carried by the juveniles, rather against the wish of both myself and wife. Had I comtemplated taking Sastes Christian Commission aend to-night, by special car, to Gettyshurg, four-team delevates with ninety-two horzes of hesofial and battle with my wife and several young children. One of your correspondents, however, save that he knows that the Derhound did aesist the Alshama, and if he does know this he knows more than I do. As to the movements of the Derhound before the action, all the movements with which I was acquainted were for the objects of enjoying the summer morning and getting a good and safe place from which to watch the engagement. ER. MASON TO MR. LANCASTER. No 24 Upper Setmour Street, Portman Square, London, June 21, 1864.

DEAR Siz: I received from Capt. Semmes, at Southampton, where I had the pleasance to see you yesterday, a full report of the efficient service rendered, under your orders, by the fficers and crew of your yacht, the Deerhound, in reacuing him with thirteen of his officers and twenty-seven of his crew from their impending fate, after the loss of his ship. Capt. Semmes reports that, finding the Ala-bama setually sinking, he had barely time to dispatch his wounded in his own boats to the dispatch his wounded in his own boats to the enemy's hip, when the Alabama went down, and that nothing was left to those on board but throw themselves into the sea Their own boats aheant, there seemed no prospect of reitef, when your yacht arrived in their mid's, and your boats were launched; and he impressively told me that to this timely and generous succor he, with most of his officers and a portion of his crew, were indebted for their arety. He further told me that ou their arrival on board the yacht every care and kinduless were ex eached to them which their exhausted condition required, even to the suphan-ted condition required, even to the sup-plying all with dry clothing. I am fully aware of the noble and disinterested spirit which prompted you to go to the rescue of the gallant crew of the Alabama, and that I can add nothing to the recompense already received by you and those acting un-der you in the consciousness of having done er you in the consciousness of having done you would be done by; yet you will per mit me to thank you, and, through you, the Captain, officers and crew of the Deerhound for this signal service, and to say that, in do ing so, I but anticipate the grateful sentiment

Hindley Hall, near Wioan, June 24, 1964. Dear Siz: I am in due receipt of your es semed favor of the 21st inst., and am gratified of fad that the timely aid we rendered with the yacht Deerhound to the gallant Captain and officers and crew of the Alabama has met with your approval. I shall always look back to that event with anti-faction, however much we may regret the result which necessitated

Yours, very respectfully, John Lancaster.

The Hon. J. M. Mason. SEMMES' NEW VESSEL The Paria France states that Semines would have another vessel in a fortnight—a nest corvette, with very fine lines, chirassed on the inside, and built to carry heavy guns. Capt. Semmes has ordered, of a private house, three pivot guns, capable of throwing shells of 170 upds, or solid shot of 220. His complement f men is to be 173-seven more than that of he Kearsage at the moment of the late fight.

As the France is, in some sort, the organ of the Confederate agents, this intelligence, after dl, may be true.
The New York Times' Paris correspondent says the description answers well to that of the Yeddo, which has left Bordeaux for Am-sterdam, and those who give credit to the statement of the France helieve that the Yeddo is the corvette in question. She has very fine lines, is entrassed inside with two layers of iron, each one third of an inch thick, by considered, and when discussion is made those to whom decision is intrusted, it is sent that all turther decision which may decay or impair the efficiency of the measure inputed ought to cease. So ought all imputes and questionings of, the mo French Captain and crew; she will, therefore, certainly be delivered to her purchasers at Amsterdam. But then she can be sold again the moral power of the decision, nor the latter without sometimes bringing disaster when proper support and couldence would have inwhat the Yeddo means to do, and that the Kearsarge will soon jotn her. The redel rams building at Bordeaux will, it is thought, be a Trade: failure, being too heavily armored.

BOARDS OF TRADE. - The following from the Boston Post illustrates the value of a Beard of

We congratulate our business community on the organization of a Steamship Company to occupy the route between Boston and Liverpool, in connection with the Cunard mail steamers. This question, to which we have so frequently and for so long a period called the attention of our readers, is definitely settled thus far—that Boston is to have a steamship line of its own to Great British. The cuterplas which a large and influential completes of the Reader. a large and influential committee of the Board of Trade has for several months past been alming to promote, is now committed to the hands of a Board of Directors, comprising have taken them to Cherbourg. These officers and men are, nevertheless, subject to the colligations imposed by the laws of war; they are prisoners, and I demand that they should surrender on board the Kearsarge. In their at tempting to release themselves from the ohigation, turough the means that have been employed, should a similar case arise, they have no ployed, should a similar case arise, they have no progress of the company. But the like like it is existence indicates the opening of a new ployed, should a similar case arise, they have no gentlemen well known in our community, and tully competent to go forward in the for her progress of the movement in such a manne as the Cunard steamers did for our city when they commenced their trips, nearly a quarter of a century ago; we know also what other lines of steamers have done for other cities; and with this data we may anticipate from the op-erations of the American Steamship Company results no less important and valuable. As we have often had occasion to remark, Bos may become as large a market and as busy a port as its own citizans choose to make it. If we allow business to be diverted from us without making an effort to retain it, or if we voluntarily transfer our capital and our enterprise to other ciries, and assist in building them up at the expense of our own, it will not be strange if decadence appear. But if we resolve to concentrate our energies here, and to hold fast to our full share both of the forely and of the domestic trade, we can insure a de-gree of prosperity for Boston such as we have never yet witnessed. The determination to provide adequate ateam facilities on the ocean is one of the most essential steps in the right direction which it was necessary to take; and we hope that other steps in advance will taken as fast as the opportunity is afforded, and as a sound prudence may dictate.

ANOTHER DESTRUCTIVE FIRE

Loss Fifty Thousand Dollaas.

A little after 10 o'clock last evening fismee were discovered issuing from a three-story brick building on Third street, between Main and the river, occupied by Samuel Schwing as a corn mill. The slarm was soon given, and the engines were promptly on the epot, but owing to the difficulty experienced in getting water on, the fire gained considerable head way, and in a short time the fiames, fed by the unbustible material, communicated to the adjoining buildings, and the three fine brick bulldings were acon wrapped in one abeet of flames. The firemen worked with energy, but the flames proved the master, and in a short time the three buildings were in one mass of ruins.

The fire originated in the mill of Mr Schwing, but from what cause we did not icarn. There was stored in this mill considerable cora, besides a quantity of meal, the reater part of which was destroyed.

We understand that there was ln the third story some corn belonging to Cropper, Pattor & Co., which they were shelling with the steam she ling machine there.

The building war, we believe, the property of Mr. Page, and was insured. What the losof Mr. Schwing, or Cropper, Patton & Co. was, we were unable to learn.

The building adjoining the mill was occu pled by George McCallum as a feed store, in which was stored a large amount of hey, the past the eteamers plying the waters of the greater portion of which was saved. In the upper stories of this building was stored a number of respers and other egricultural im plements. D. C. Stone bad stored there about $500 worth of wheelbarrows, all of at some way point. One of the most daring which were destroyed, and upon which there was no insprance.

The building next to this was occupied by Mr. Christe, who is a Government contractwho was a passenger on the boat, cutered his or. The lower story was filled with hay, state-room during the afternoon, and lay down nearly, if not all, of which was saved before to take a nap. While he was asleep, some the building took fire. These two latter buildadroit thief entered the state-room and ab- lings, we understand, belonged to Jessie's stracted from the pantaloous' pecket of Mr. beirs. We did not learn whether they were insured or not.

The loss by this fire cannot fall short of $50,000, the greater part of which is no doubt tine nushed, we were unable to learn the actual amount of the loss or insurance.

It was reported this morning, and generally credited, that a rebel cavalry force, which crossed the Washington Relirond yesterday at Bettsville, had reached Annapolia, and that city was actually in the hands of the rebels.

The report aprend all over the city, and was, strengthened by the fact that a gamboat had been sent for during the night; but at eleven o'clock this morning it was learned from the telegraph office that all was quiet at Annapolis, nd that as lar as known no rebel force was cming is that direction.

Arrangements have been made for the de-mee of Anapolis, and gunboats are stationed in the harbor which can sweep the land approaches. The destination of the large force of rebel cavalry that crossed the railroad is herefore not known. (From the Country Gentleman and Cultivator.) Something About Tobacco.

Much attention has lately been given to a very few. After this fashion, tnen, wo-the cultivation of tobacco in our Northern men and boys passed the hours till every bacco a horrid vice, and the raising of it akin to the making of ardent spirits, are putting in an acre or so this way in a property of the prison. putting in an acre or so this year, just to see if it will pay. Religious papers that once harranged heavily against the prostitution of the earth to such a base and vicefostering product, now and then elip iu a trial. His father and wife were allowed to little extract, telling their readers how to raise a big crop of the accursed weed. "As we slip we slide along !"

they were esparated by a double grating, Tobacco is probably an "Indian weed," and indigenous to this country. We say probably because it has been attempted to show that it was known and used in the so soon to be a widow was heart reading old world long before our country found a She clung to the grating as if she would name in the terrestial geography; but, like not be torn from it, her husband was more the legends that aniedate the discovery of self-possessed. They lingered as long as America to the time of Columbus, it is merely traditional, and without requisite proof. We think tobacco is verily an "Indian weed." The sailors of Columbus found the natives of the isles they visited taking a smoke, and soon learned to take a smoke themselves. England had for many years used tobacco before Sir Walter Ra leigh made it fashionable at court. When any custom became fashionable at court, it hope was over; that the petition for morey was asure thing. Everybody smoked. The tobacco sickness attendant upon the first attempt was looked upon as being as necessary to have as the measter, and the pipe became a household god. Ladies smoked, and it is related that Louis XIV once caught his daughters at midnight in full combustions and it is related that Louis XIV once caught his daughters at midnight in full combustions. was a sure thing. Everybody smoked. The his daughters at midnight in full combus. a short distance, but not out of sight. The tion of the weed, with borrowed pipes at convict had previously several interviews that. Tobacco intoxicated England, and with the Abbe, confessed his sins, and it received the sacraments; but what world. The Turk, the Hun, the German, and in fact everybody who could get the precious plant, smoked. There was no fine cut in those days; they dried the leaf, rubhimself into his arms. He had hitherto cut in those days; they dried the leaf, rubbed it fine in their hands and filled their pipes. There was no copperas in it then—no licorice; dogs and sheep were not so vermin infested as to render it necessary to make tobacco decoctions, and then sell the leached plant as Killikinick. In the olden time it was very expensive, often selling for its weight in silver. In 1010 it was complained that the "natrimonies of take some refreshments, but declined." was complained that the "patrimonies of 10 take some refreshments, but declined. many young and noble gentlemen had been Before he quitted the cell the head of the quite exhausted, and bath vanished clean Department of Public Security asked him away with this smoky vapor, and both most shamefully and beastly flyen out at the master's noze." The old-fashioned clay pipe was a great institution, and our country stores still keep a box on hand. The German head bent towards the fatal instrument. Meerschaum, made of hard, light and por-ous clay, is now the pipe-extra. The rich braced the priest, gave himself up to the color of this pipe is achieved by long and constant smoking. Probably the enjoyment of smoking is no greater in a rich the ponderous blade rushed down, and extinted meerschaum than in a clay pipe—

The old-time fathers of Connecticut were down on the use of tobocco. If a man did not own a freehold estate, they fined him for using tobacco. One of their old blue laws was, "That no person under the ago of 21, nor any other that hath not already over, the crowd lingered some time on the epot, and the morning was far advanced before they retired. accustomed himself to the use thercof, shall before they retired. take any tobacko until hee hath brought a Courte, for the same." "And it is ordered-That no man in this colonye shall take any tobacko, publiquely, in the streett, hightobacko, publiquely, in the streett, high-ways, or any barne yards, or upon training Howard Glyndon, delicated "to the Presidays, or in any open places, under penalty of six-pence for each offence."

Illoward's wife." The concluding verse of lloward's poom runs thus: The puritan church fathers hated tobacco and believed it to be a decoy of the devil, and likened the fumes thereof to the smoke of the bottomless pit.

"Abhorred a sattin suit, a velvet cloake, And said tobacco was the devill's smoke." What pleasure there is in smoking it is Mare Island barracks, at Sun Francisco hard to state, yet the smoker will tell you on the 21st of June. He was the only loyal there is comfort in it. That it soothes and member of a large Virginia family, but he quiets in some cases there is no doubt; that it does quite the reverse sometimes is equally certain. It is stated that it sends one up to the iris-tinted empyrcan: " A few more whifts of my segar, And then in faucy's alsy car, Itawe with thee to the skies.

How oft this fragrant smoke up curied
Hash berne me from this little world.
And all that in it lies."

Great men have smoked; other great men have not. Tobacco has not hurt some, others it has—with some it goes well after eating, and gives some the dyspepsia and vertigo. It is a habit hurtful sometimes, indifferent in some cases. That it is unnecessary is admitted, but that it puts millions into the pockets of our culturists can't be questioned. That it adds to the circumstances of the holder of the plow is appear-

The Indians burnt tobacco as a symbo of peace. Their "calumet" was sacred. William Penn, who disliked the "weed, took a few puffs from the pipe of peace to ratify his bargains. When the old war sachems brought forth the calminet, scalps were a sure thing to the owners. Poets have not forgetten tobacco. Centuries ago some moralist wrote: Tobacco's but an Indian weed, Grows green at more, out down at eve; It shows our decay, we are but clay; Think of this when you smoke tounco.

The pipe that is so llly white,

Wherein so many take delight, Is broke with a touch—man's life is such: Think of this when you smoke tobacco.

Shows how our life is stained with sin, And then the fire it doth require;
Think of this when you smoke tobacco.

The sahes that are left behind, Do serve to put us all in mind Thet unte dust return we must; Think of tals when you smoke tobacco.

Execution of La Pommerais, the French Thirty Chousand Parisians.

Potsoner-The Scene Witnessed by The Paris correspondent of the Landon

Times thus describes the execution of the French poisoner, Dr. La Pommerais, which took place in Paris, on Friday, June 10:

The execution of Dr. Conty de la Pommerais, took place at six o'clock, yester-day morning. Every night since Monday crowds of people thronged the Place de la Roquette, and remained till daybreak. They desired to see the execution with their own eyes, and resolved to sacrifice their rest to their curiosity, particularly as there were rumors that a commutation of the sentence was probable. again went to the ground as early as uine o'clock on Wednesday evening, and took their station as before. The tide advanced every hour, and soon after the prison clock struck one their attention was rous. ed by the rumbling sound of approaching carts. Any doubts they might have had were at once desipated, for the carts were laden with the pieces of the instrument of punishment. As the night wore on the multidude grew more dense, and before five o'clock there could not have been less than thirty thousand people of all classes. The bearing of many betrayed the feeling which urged them to the foot of the scaffold. An ignoble ballad, called "The complaint of La Pommerais," had circulated for some days past in the streets of Paris. It was hummed, or drawled with others of the same style, close to the place of execution; and the pastime was diversed with indecent jests, which were received with loud laughter by many, and reproaches by a very few. After this fashion, then, wo-FOR SALE AND RENT.
